

STUDENT ENTREPRENEURS WANTED

- Would you like to meet young entrepreneurs from all over the world?
- Could you start an exciting new student club with chapters in 10 countries?
- Do you want a chance to travel to Stanford University for a week-long entrepreneurship conference?

Introducing the Asia-Pacific Student Entrepreneurship Society (ASES) which helps educate and network future business leaders across the Asia-Pacific. Started at Stanford University in 1998, ASES now has 15 chapters across the world and meet twice a year at conferences in the USA (at Stanford) and the Asia-Pacific.

ASES Australia has selected ANU as the next university to incubate a chapter. If you are a leader, a great organiser or already have your own business you could be part of the founding team of ASES @ ANU. As the Founding President, Treasurer, or Projects Director you would be responsible for recruiting members, liaising with existing clubs and faculty, securing sponsors and running a speaker series. You will also have the opportunity to attend the 2010 ASES Summit at Stanford University.
